Flood Chaos Eases

TORONTO (CP) — Order has gradually emerged from the grim chaos left by Hurricane Hazel in the western outskirts of Toronto.

But disaster crews were still recovering bodies from the silt and debris piled high by the Humber River, and an unconfirmed report was published that the Ontario death toll of last Friday's storm—now 78—may exceed 100 when the flooded Holland marsh is drained.

George Bryant, Toronto Star reporter, wrote that 25 may have perished when 7,000 acres of rich reclaimed farmland was deeply inundated and almost 3,000 persons were forced from their homes.

Police at Bradford, beside the marsh, discounted the report. They said they knew of only one man missing and he might be visiting Toronto.

Search parties in small boats poked among floating vegetation for signs of human bodies.

Besides the 78 dead, and apart from the reported Holland marsh missing, seven persons are missing and presumed drowned and nine are listed as missing.

It may be weeks before the facts are known. Huge pumps must remove millions of tons of water before the land is dry.

Tuesday the Humber, which claimed at least 37 lives in three Toronto suburbs in its mad race toward Lake Ontario, was back to normal—a quiet, harmless stream, unrecognizable as the Friday torrent that broke frame homes like matchsticks and tossed humans to their death like china dolls.

From all parts of Canada, donations reached the Ontario Hurricane Relief Fund. It neared the $1,000,000 mark—one-tenth of its immediate objective—in the first day.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said a royal commission will be formed to determine the flood damage, first atep toward making federal funds available for relief and rehabilitation in flood districts.

York township banned all future building in low-lying areas. Etobicoke township where most of the Humber River's slaughter happened, announced a similar order made in 1948 now will be strictly enforced.

LONG BRANCH, Ont. (BUP)—A man and his wife, described by Reeve Marie Curtis as "human vultures," were charged Tuesday with stealing the food and relief supplies for victims of Toronto's floods.

TORONTO (CP) — Police at Markham, 10 miles north of here, said Tuesday the salvaged belongings of numerous flood victims in the area were stolen Monday night from the home of councillor Mrs. Alma Walker, where they had been stored. Officers said the thieves must have used a truck to cart away the furniture, clothing, bedding and foodstuffs.

Waiting, Hoping for Nancy

There's a home in Victoria for wee Nancy Thorpe, orphaned in Ontario's unprecedented floods. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Scroggs have everything ready for an adopted baby and their arms are open to receive Nancy . . . or some other little one, if red tape makes adoption of the Ontario infant impossible.

Red Tape May Crush Dream

Childless Victorians Eager To Adopt Orphan of Storm

A childless Victoria couple, who have been vainly seeking a baby for adoption for more than a year, yesterday offered a "made-to-order" home to four-month-old Nancy Thorpe, orphaned by the hurricane that struck Toronto Friday night.

Mrs. A. W. Scroggs, 35-year-old London-born wife, who was orphaned herself at 10, said she and her car salesman husband had been waiting for 14 months for a baby to adopt and had spent hours preparing for the day.

The couple was disappointed just a month ago, Mrs. Scroggs said, when an infant they were to take home was judged by authorities too ill to be adopted.

The Toronto infant Mrs. Scroggs seeks to mother was orphaned when her father, mother, brother and grandmother were drowned in Toronto's storm-flooded Etobicoke Creek.

Nancy was saved by Long Branch Fire Chief Albert Houston, who took her from her mother's arms and ferried her to the roof of a cement-block home. He was unable to return for the mother.

Mrs. Scroggs said she couldn't have children of her own, and that she and her husband had been placed on the city's list of prospective parents-by-adoption here.

She and her husband had been thoroughly examined by authorities to establish their fitness as parents, she said.

The childless couple, who came to Victoria seven years ago from England, spent the period of waiting for a child to adopt, by preparing a room "and everything a baby could want or need," Mrs. Scroggs told The Daily Colonist.

She said she had made ready everything from pins to bottles and had spent long hours knitting sweaters and baby socks. Blankets, nighties, bonnets and other articles of baby clothing she had made by hand, and she displayed them fondly.

Mrs. Scroggs said she hadn't taken children into her home on the temporary basis asked by the Victoria children's service, which seeks to restore youngsters to their true parents, "because I would grow too fond of them."

"I wouldn't want to let them go," she said.

The Victoria wife said she had cared for her sister's six children in London during the war years and had suffered heartache because she could not have any of her own.

Authorities here are of the opinion the local couple's offer of a home for the Toronto orphan of the storm is not likely to be accepted.

They said "interprovincial red tape" would work against it. The Ontario government would not likely let the orphaned Thorpe baby be adopted outside the province, they said.

But Mrs. Scroggs still hopes, and the baby things are waiting.

Suez Pact Signed

CAIRO (AP)—Under close security guard, British and Egyptian diplomats Tuesday night signed an historic treaty to end Britain's occupation of the Suez Canal Zone within 20 months.

A proclamation held Egyptian police and armed forces in a state of alert after alleged agents of the Communists and the fanatical Moslem Brotherhood had stoned and wrecked two buses near Cairo.

Officials said the alerting proclamation was merely precautionary. They explained the incident that prompted it occurred at a youth rally held in the Giza area near the Great Pyramid to celebrate the end of 72 years of British military activity in Egypt. A few persons were reported injured.

The treaty calls for withdrawal of the 83,000 British troops in the Canal Zone.

Young, new figures in British and Egyptian political life signed the pact. Lieut.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, 36-year-old premier whose army coup dethroned King Farouk August 26, 1952, headed the Egyptian delegation. Anthony Nutting, 34-year-old minister of state, headed the British signers.

Reform School Officials Fired in Wake of Probe

Details of B.C. Report Still Not Made Public

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP)—The seven top officials of the boys' industrial school here have been removed from office by provincial government order.

The order, read to members of the school staff Tuesday by provincial deputy minister of welfare, C. W. Lundy, follows an investigation into operation of the school by a government-appointed committee.

The school, situated in this Fraser River centre, 18 miles east of Vancouver, is the only institution in the province to which the courts may sentence juveniles requiring detention.

Welfare department officials said the seven officials removed from office would be placed in other positions outside the school administration.

NAMES LISTED

Removed from office were Herbert E. Blanchard, school director; Wallace Mayers, assistant superintendent; George Whiten, treatment director; S. Evans, chief supervisor; F. Renton, assistant supervisor; H. Penny, social work supervisor, and E. Blackburn, head school teacher.

None of the seven could be reached immediately for comment.

The order named F. G. Hassard of Vernon, B.C., regional administrator of social welfare for the Okanagan-Kamloops area, as temporary director of the school.

MUCH CRITICISM

Welfare Minister Eric Martin named R. W. Schou of Vancouver to head the committee which investigated conditions at the school following widespread criticism of conditions there.

Details of the report, completed more than a month ago, have not yet been made public.

Escapes from the school have been frequent and police and other civic officials have publicly criticized security conditions at the school and its rehabilitation program.

You Should Give More!

BY COURTNEY HADDOCK
Chairman, Community Chest Campaign

You should give more this year to the 17 Red Feather agencies of the Community Chest in Greater Victoria.

An analysis of your donation, as divided among the agencies, graphically shows why.

If you donate $5, you are giving $1.75 to the biggest of the agencies — the Family and Children's Service, which numbers foster care, guardianship and adoption of children as its major duties.

You are giving one cent to the smallest of the 17, the Christmas Bureau, which provides the needy and their children with food, clothing and toys for the biggest day of the year.

COURTNEY HADDOCK

Some other examples—you are giving less than 45 cents to the Victorian Order of Nurses to carry on its excellent work; less than 40 cents to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and two cents to the Columbia Coast Mission, which serves the isolated along the west coast of Vancouver Island.

These agencies banded together at the public's request to reduce the cost of administration and have made that cost less than 40 cents of every $5 you contribute—one of the lowest Community Chest totals in North America.

Now it is up to you to give more to those who did what you asked.

Every donation is spent in the municipality—not a cent goes outside.

Merchants who give benefit particularly, but the spending of $203,000 in Greater Victoria is a benefit to the entire community.

Captain Video Awes Senators

WASHINGTON (UP) — Captain Video, hero of outer space, came down to earth long enough yesterday to assure a Senate subcommittee that his television program would never lead a child astray.

The captain, who is an actor named Al Hodge in real life, wore a plain blue suit instead of his familiar Video Ranger uniform. But he was an impressive witness just the same.

Sen. Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N.J.) head of the subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, respectfully addressed Hodge as "captain."

The subcommittee is investigating whether crime and violence on TV programs contribute to juvenile delinquency. Captain Video said he didn't think so.

LIVE TO REFORM

On his own program, he said, the Video Rangers use "stun guns" which are not fatal but merely permit disarmament of interplanetary villians who are subsequently rehabilitated on planet "Canymede."

"You have to have villians in a hero program, or there's not any use for a hero," the captain said, explaining to the Senators what every young TV fan knows.

But the blond, bronzed actor said he avoids bloodshed and killings. He also keeps on the lookout for a "moral value" while cruising around in his space ship.

STEP LIGHTLY

Hendrickson wanted to know whether Video Rangers jump up and down on the knuckles of their opponents like some of the characters the subcommittee saw in a film exhibit earlier.

"We often step on hands," Captain Video admitted, "but only to hold a man there. There are no screams and definitely no bone-crunching."

City Girl Guarded From Jail Revenge

A 15-year-old former Victoria girl, youngest person ever convicted in Vancouver for possessing narcotics, is being kept under police protection because she is "frightened to death of going to Oakalla."

The girl, Joyce Markevitch, was ordered confined to the downtown Vancouver jail to await sentence rather than to Oakalla Prison Farm, where prisoners usually wait for the court's punishment, because she had "received threats."

Special prosecutor A. D. McEachern said "she told me she was frightened to death of going to Oakalla."

"The girl did not tell me the nature of the threats," Mr. McEachern said, "but it was suggested that if she gave evidence on her own behalf, implicating others, she was in danger of being physically harmed at Oakalla.

"She gave such evidence," he said.

"I took her word for it," he added.

The girl, one of the youngest ever convicted on a narcotics charge in Canada, was found guilty along with Percy Parker, 23. Both will be sentenced Wednesday.

Another man and a woman, picked up with them by RCMP drug squad detectives, were scheduled to appear in court Wednesday.

Miss Markevitch is a ward of the Catholic Children's Aid.

But Our Fair City Still Finest on Continent

Wacky Walkers, Dippy Drivers Driving Parson Potty

BY HARRY YOUNG

The city with the world's worst drivers, the stupidest pedestrians, the zaniest traffic regulations?

Victoria is the answer, according to Dr. W. G. Wilson, former First United Church minister and for 33 years a resident of the city.

Despite his scathing remarks, Dr. Wilson told members of the Chamber of Commerce tourist trade group yesterday that he lived in Victoria because "it's the finest place to live on the North American continent."

The 86-year-old speaker interspersed his condemnations with some constructive ideas.

He suggested Victoria should try to be a more friendly city.

He cited a recent case of a Chilliwack man who claimed he had been insulted by a member of the police force, "for picnicking in the wrong spot."

He instanced two English girls who, although coming from a "reserved" country, said over the radio that they found Victoria an unfriendly city.

"You got enough bad advertising recently from Shawnigan Lake without bringing things nearer home," he added.

Looking around his audience, Dr. Wilson declared: "I think some of you chaps should come to church more often."

He said that the tourist trade perhaps did not realize how good a job the churches were doing for the tourist business.

"We make ourselves friendly to visitors," he said.

"Every visitor who comes to our church is asked to sign his or her name before leaving. We send every one of them a card at Christmas . . ."

Dr. Wilson added that business could be built up by friendliness.

But when you talk about traffic to the good doctor, it's just like waving a red flag in front of a bull.

He just bursts out of himself.

"Drivers in Victoria have the worst manners I have ever encountered. They have no manners at all.

"They won't let you make a left hand turn—until a car with a foreign license plate comes along.

"The bad habits of drivers are only surpassed by the bad manners of the pedestrians.

"Pedestrians cross the streets without looking right or left as if they were suffering from sleeping sickness.

"They cross against the lights and then look at you as if you had no right to be driving on their streets."

"I met a man from Chicago who said he was getting out of Victoria as soon as he could. He was dead scared to drive on our streets."

Dr. Wilson suggested that the Chamber of Commerce should stimulate an educational campaign on road manners and safety.

The positioning of the traffic lights, some at the side of the intersections, some on both sides of the road, some on one side and others up aloft in the middle of the intersections, all came in for the doctor's censure.

"They should be standardized. Besides at night the flashing neons make traffic lights crazy."

Curb markings also came in for criticism.

"I always thought red-lined curbs meant bus stops, but I've stood at one in Victoria which never has any buses."

He suggested it was unnecessary to have yellow or "no parking" lines in front of the city churches.

"They are used only about twice every week on Sundays or for an occasional big funeral. Churches should be allowed to hang out 'no parking' notices when the churches are in use, and let cars be parked there at other times," he added.

He estimated the spaces in front of city churches will park 100 cars a day for a period of one hour each.

He summed up the tourist trade people as a group that wanted visitors to come in large numbers, with plenty of money in their pockets.

"You then want to take that money out of their pockets, let them go with only enough to make a decent departure," he said.

Metal Fatigue Blamed For Blasts on Comets

LONDON (Reuters)—All 35 persons aboard a British Comet jet airliner were blown to oblivion in January over the Mediterranean island of Elba when the Comet's pressurized cabin burst like a bomb due to metal fatigue, a court of inquiry was told Tuesday.

This solution to one of the world's most puzzling air mysteries was given by Sir Lionel Heald, retiring attorney-general, who is conducting the inquiry for the government.

He said, too, that the same cause was probably behind a second Comet disaster off the Italian port of Naples in April. All of the British Overseas Airways Corporation Comet fleet was grounded after the second crash, which killed 21 persons.

Heald drew a graphic picture of how sudden death came to the 35 people over Elba by quoting conclusions of scientists who have labored for months to solve the Comet riddle.

The sleek airliner was climbing smoothly between blue sky and water to a height of nearly 35,000 feet, he said.

Suddenly, one-third of a second later, the passengers were blasted to oblivion as the cabin burst.

"It is quite clear there was an almost instantaneous upward force generated inside the pressure cabinet which threw most of the passengers in their seats forward and upward against the roof," he told a hushed audience of aeronautical experts, lawyers and laymen.

Heald said what happened was "something like the blast of a compressed air gun."

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF will continue to ground its two Comet jetliners at least until it receives full and final information on the cause of a British Comet crash in the Mediterranean last January, an air force spokesman said Tuesday.

The spokesman said the RCAF will require a full report on results of the investigation before it can decide whether to start flying its Comets again. The two transports have been grounded for several months following a series of Comet crackups abroad which cost 99 lives.

Socreds Girding For Convention

Premier W. A. C. Bennett is in Vancouver today for closed sessions with other big guns of the Social Credit movement to draft plans for the annual party convention.

From more than 40 Social Credit organizations will come 600 delegates from all parts of the province for the two-day convention which opens in Vancouver Friday.

According to A. S. Matthews, Socred MLA for Vancouver Centre, the closed session will last all today and probably part of Thursday.

"We want to get things ready for the convention," he added.

Premier Bennett and members of the provincial cabinet, national Socred president Rev. E. G. Hansell, MP, and national organizer Orvis Kennedy are included in the list of speakers.

National party leader Solon Low, MP, will address the meeting at a special banquet on the close of the convention Saturday evening.

About 120 resolutions are expected to be placed before the convention for consideration, and delegates are also expected to make a number of revisions in the constitution of the B.C. Social Credit League. The revisions will be designed to streamline the party's main organization and keep it abreast of the rapid growth of the movement.

Heading the heavy list of resolutions, many of which will compliment the government on progress on the PGE, roads, bridges and the handling of the Frobisher development, is one recommending amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Delegates will urge that coverage be extended to more workers, and to those whose benefits have been exhausted.

TRUCKING PROPOSAL

A second important resolution will ask that the B.C. trucking industry be removed from the authority of the Public Utilities Commission, and placed under a government department.

In addition to the main convention, the league's women's auxiliary will hold a one-day meeting Thursday, with more than 125 delegates expected.

Leave Canvasser Note If You're Going Out

Householders were asked yesterday to do the Community Chest of Greater Victoria a small favor if they are going to be out when the canvasser calls.

The request was made as the 19-day drive for $203,000, which is to end Saturday night, reached the $87,350 mark late yesterday.

To householders, the request is to "make sure you leave word for the canvasser when he comes calling."

Officials asked that if any householder going out during the next four evenings to leave a note on the front door stating a time and date for the canvasser to return.

Another request to canvassers of all divisions whether residential, business or any other, was for a completion of the campaign in their area and a return of donations to headquarters as quickly as possible during the four days remaining in the drive.

More aid from a distant area reached the Chest yesterday when a donation was received from Sayward, northwest of Campbell River.

The donation, a $50 cheque, was from the Kelsey Bay Logging Company, and Chest officials expressed their gratitude for the assistance.

Electronics Taking Over Office Work

"An electronic revolution is in progress in the business office, the Victoria branch of the National Office Management Association was told yesterday at its "Top Management Night" dinner.

N. O. Paquette, president of Stevenson & Kellogg Ltd., described some of the "fantastic" new business machines which are being developed to simplify office procedures.

Using punched tapes for "memories," these electronic brains will take over much of the statistical and bookkeeping work of the office of the future, he said.

The "memory" tapes are prepared by perforators built into such basic machines as typewriters and adding machines, and permanent working records are thus prepared with the initial recording of information.

The taped information can then be collated, calculated and reproduced endlessly without further manual operations.

Within 10 years, Mr. Paquette predicted, office managers will be able to handle more paper work with half their present personnel, through the use of these machines.

Similar techniques are being used in industrial plants, he noted.

In one new automotive plant, he said, entire engine blocks are completely machined and inspected by "automation," without human handling.

Keeps Busy

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters) — Detectives took Fred Pearson, 42, to the police station to question him about shoplifting, and claimed that while there he stole £5 from a policewoman's handbag. He was given six months' imprisonment on shoplifting and theft charges.

Deal with Kaiser Claimed Blow To Province's Industrial Future

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Sun in a dispatch from Ottawa says federal government officials charge that British Columbia's proposed Columbia River hydro-electric deal with the Kaiser Aluminum Company would lower power costs through the United States northwest and encourage new industry there that might otherwise come to Canada.

The dispatch said that resources men in Ottawa describe the Columbia as one of the major natural resources still to be developed in Canada and it will have a profound bearing on the future of the B.C. economy.

"They warn that the Kaiser deal would give away power at a quarter or half the current market price and far less than it will be worth in a few years," said the Sun report.

"One expert estimated it would cost B.C. $5,000,000 annually at our current prices."

The Sun dispatch also says that hydro experts in Ottawa dismissed as "quite unrealistic" figures quoted by B.C. Lands Minister R. E. Sommers.

In Victoria, Lands Minister Sommers said: "We're looking after the disposition of our resources and we think we're making a good disposition of them. And we believe our figures are reliable."

He added: "They're looking for a quarrel, but there's nothing to quarrel about."

BRIDGE QUIZ

Here are some more questions involving the problem of what to do when partner's opening bid is doubled for a take-out and you have a little strength, but not a great deal. It is understood by most players that a bid in this situation, other than a jump bid or a redouble, shows no great strength. But it is ridiculous to assume, as some players do, that a pass may be stronger than a bid, and that the weaker your hand the more imperative it is to come into the bidding over the double.

With neither side vulnerable, the bidding has gone:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST

What should South do with each of the following hands?

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

(a) Pass. You would like to pre-empt by raising to two hearts, but your flat distribution makes this hand of very little value. If partner has a minimum, you may be seriously hurt at two hearts doubled.

(b) Pass. Too weak to show the clubs. Your suit is dangerously feeble; besides, with a doubleton diamond and a king behind the double you are able to offer fair support for hearts and even some defensive prospects if the opponents play the hand at spades.

(c) One spade. You don't like one heart doubled, and there is some prospect that West might pass and convert East's double into a penalty double. You aren't strong enough to make a better bid. The fact that you might also make this call with a little less strength shouldn't induce you to bid more, or to re-double.

(d) Two hearts. Compare your playing strength with hand (a). Obviously, you will be able to furnish partner with [illegible] playing tricks [illegible]

(e) One no-trump. You aren't afraid of hearts, but you have the kind of hand that is not quite worth a redouble and that will embarrass you to find a good bid later on. The solution is to bid one no-trump at once, indicating between 8 and 10 points.

(f) Three hearts. Strictly pre-emptive. Your hand will win three or four tricks at hearts, but will do very little defensively if the opponents bid either one of the black suits. You are trying to keep the opponents quiet.

North British Areas Hard Hit by Storm

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Floods following two days of torrential rain in the northern part of Britain have cut off two big towns, isolated many villages, blocked road, rail and telephonic communications and made hundreds of families homeless.

The farming town of Wigton in Cumberland has been marooned since noon Monday.

Despite serious damage to property only one death has so far been reported. A five-year-old Glasgow boy was caught in the overflow of a river and sucked into an underground tunnel.

Omagh, principal town of county Tyrone, Northern Ireland—scene of the week-end gun battle between British troops and Irish Republican extremists—now also is out of touch, with hundreds of houses and shops swamped by four feet of water.

In scenes reminiscent of the Canadian week-end floods in the Toronto area, police and municipal workers Tuesday used row-boats to rescue housewives, school children and workers trapped in their homes in low-lying parts of Glasgow.

Landslides and flooding have blocked rail lines and roads, causing long diversions and upsetting timetables.

Stories of rescue and narrow escapes came in from many areas. Police had to rescue eight trapped families at Kilmarnock and six at Coatbridge, both in Scotland.

At Ballymena, Northern Ireland, families were being evacuated from 200 homes while others, preferring to stay marooned upstairs, were being supplied with food by boat and ladder.

Crown Seeking To Build Case Against Accused Widow

TORONTO (BUP) — The Crown sought to build up its murder case against Mary Elizabeth Bell Tuesday after establishing that she bought strychnine about five weeks before her husband was poisoned.

Druggist Archie Boyd testified Monday that he sold the 48-year-old brunette two drams of the poison after warning her that the ounce she asked for "would kill all the rats in Belleville."

Dr. Hans Lucke, a pathologist who examined Percy Bell's body after his death last New Year's Day, said that from technical evidence at the trial and his own observations he "would ascribe Bell's death to poisoning by strychnine."

Mrs. Bell, dressed in black, sobbed convulsively as Roscoe Jenners, a barber who lived with the Bells for three years, described her husband's convulsive death agonies.

Jenners testified that he gave Bell a box of liver pills when he complained of a backache the night before he died. He said he had told his landlady to keep them, and had not seen them since.

Jenners denied that he had ever made love to the dead man's wife or "even made a pass at her." Mrs. Bell turned her head away and looked at the floor as he mounted the stand to testify.

He said he and Bell had been on friendly terms, and the dying man had called out: "Stay with me, Rusty, don't leave me."

Scottish Show In Victoria For Two Days

Scottish tenor Robert Wilson and his White Heather Show came roamin' out of the gloamin' into Victoria last night for a two-performance at the Royal Theatre.

Tonight and Thursday are big ones for the city's Scots community, and tickets are being eagerly snapped up for both performances.

Included in the cast are Glasgow comedian Jack Anthony and accordianist Will Starr, along with other well-known Scottish entertainers.

The company, which played Ladysmith, will also visit Cumberland and Port Alberni before leaving Vancouver Island. The cast is staying at the Empress Hotel.

Smiles for Christmas

Smallest Agency Has Large Heart

An organization with a heart but without an office is the smallest but one of the most important of the 17 Red Feather agencies in the Greater Victoria Community Chest.

It is the Christmas Bureau, which will take only 20 cents of each $100 donated to the Chest this year.

That 20 cents will put smiles on many sad faces of young members of needy families, which receive toys, clothing, food and sometimes cheques from a Santa Claus in civilian clothing.

The Young Women's Christian Association conducted the bureau last year, polling 83 organizations for the names of persons requiring help and for information on the help required.

These organizations donated funds to bolster the Chest allocation of $320 to $611 for a merry Christmas for the needy.

The families of widows and elderly people had a brighter Christmas due to the bureau's work.

Toys and clothing were donated by city organizations and the public and repaired by various groups, and food was purchased out of funds available.

The same procedure will be followed this year, and the Chest will notify the public early in December regarding a point to which toys and clothing will be sent.

"The gratitude of the people is overwhelming," an official says. "You should have heard the squeals when two young boys in a foster home were given an electric train which had been donated by an anonymous citizen."

Victoria, Nanaimo To Have Regattas

Victoria and Nanaimo will both have powerboat regattas during the May 24 week end to open the Vancouver Island and Lower Mainland Powerboat Association season.

Dates for other association events include Campbell River, July 1; Hatzic Lake, near Vancouver, July 2 and 3; Sproat Lake, July 16 and 17; Kelowna, July 27-28; Orville, Wash., July 31, August 1; Seattle, August 6 and 7; Vancouver, August 20; Victoria, Labor Day week end.

Vancouver will be host to the annual meeting November 14 of the B.C. region, Canadian Powerboat Association.

Road-Building Firm Fined For Defrauding Ontario

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (BUP) A roadbuilding firm was fined $100,000 Monday for defrauding the Ontario government of about $360,000 on three contracts.

Tomlinson Brothers Ltd., pleaded guilty to the charge in a surprise move. The Crown said the highways department had recovered the money.

Arthur M. Mill, a former Fort William engineer of the department, was fined $3,500 and given an 18-month suspended sentence when he pleaded guilty to breach of public trust.

The first conviction in the highways swindle which broke a year ago saw four of Mills' former junior employees sent to prison for a total of 30 months last June.

The Crown, apparently surprised by the company's and Mills' guilty pleas, called only two of its 10 witnesses and the hearing took less than three hours.

William S. Tomlinson, millionaire vice-president of the construction firm, and C. W. Tayler, its superintendent, were freed of fraud charges. A similar charge also was dropped against Tomlinson Brothers Eastern Ltd., a subsidiary of the senior company.

Justice R. A. Danis said evidence indicated the government had held back enough funds from various Tomlinson contracts to cover the fraud, but the company was "legally and morally" guilty.

"It is inconceivable that the management would not know that the company did not perform any work or give any value for the extra money in the three contracts," he said.

The Crown did not demand a jail sentence for Mills, but the judge said he would have imposed one anyhow if there was any evidence to show that the engineer got any of the $360,000.

Plastic Robe Latest Loss For Stadium

VANCOUVER (CP) — Soggy Empire Stadium, only football field in the Western Conference which could double as a water polo court, is still having trouble.

The field, which Pacific National Exhibition officials say will have to be dug up after the football season due to drainage problems, lost its winter overcoat Tuesday.

The covering, known as "the robe" to Western Interprovincial Football Union spectators, is 70,000 square feet of plastic. It cost an estimated $1,200.

Sometime during the early morning hours approximately 24,000 square feet of it blew away in a wind storm.

"We've spent $7,000 in two games trying to fix the field," stadium manager Dave Dauphinee said. "We hope we can repair the raincoat."

From Bremerhaven, Germany comes a report that a West Germany navy will be able to take to the seas 24 hours after final ratification of the London rearmament agreement. It won't be big—some minesweepers, tenders, oilers and small patrol craft—but it will be a navy.

The biggest network television show in history will be seen Sunday evening when all ABC, CBS, DuMont and NBC networks will celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of Light.

Over 300 TV stations will carry a two-hour salute to Thomas Edison, on the 75th anniversary of his invention of the electric light.

The show, to be produced by David O. Selznick, will be seen here from 9 to 11 p.m., on nearly all channels.

No Place Like Home Dept.: Each time I take a trip I marvel at the wonderful television we have here.

Our good fortune is especially obvious when visiting Seattle, Bellingham or Vancouver.

In Seattle, the normal TV dial includes channels 4, 5 and 11; perhaps 13.

In Bellingham channels 12 and 2 are normal fare, along with some channel 4 and 5 reception.

In Vancouver, it is channels 2 and 12, with fair reception on 4 and 5, and in a few cases, channel 11.

But in Victoria, all channels are receivable with a quality unheard of elsewhere.

Long Cooking Time Used To Get Pot Roast Tender

BY THE CHEF

One of the happiest ways to deal with a piece of meat is to pot roast it. This procedure calls for a less tender, less expensive cut, but the finished product after long hours of simmering in aromatic gravy is fork-tender and has a flavor that is a match for choice steak ... [illegible] ... eaters prefer it.

Almost every nation has its version of beef pot roast. It's only the seasonings that make the differences. The basic method is the same—first searing the meat, then long, slow cooking in liquid.

Top round, rump, chuck or bottom round are your pot roast cuts. Start with about 3 pounds of boneless beef and brown on all sides in fat in a Dutch oven or heavy pan.

Beef pot roast cooked with fresh vegetables makes a hearty autumn dinner for a family.

BOEUF BOURGUIGNONNE

Now, if the final result is going to be the classic French Boeuf Bourguignonne, remove your meat, and in the same fat (there should be about 3 tablespoons) saute 2 medium onions, minced and one medium carrot, minced, until soft and golden.

[illegible] ... Add beef plus 3 cups of ... [illegible] ... bay leaf ... cloves ... pepper ... parsley ... celery ... [illegible]

Simmer covered for 2½-3 hours or until beef is extremely tender. At the end of cooking period remove beef carefully to a hot platter. Strain gravy and add a pound of ... mushrooms ... tablespoons of chopped parsley ... [illegible] ... serve in a gravy boat alongside the meat.

If you plan to make your pot roast Hungarian style, sear it first, then remove from pot. Again, in the fat, saute 3 medium onions, chopped small. When onions are soft and golden, put meat back, and add a teaspoon of salt, 2 tablespoons Hungarian paprika plus ¼ teaspoon of nutmeg.

Over all pour about a cup of beef stock ... [illegible] ... to a small amount of liquid for the sake of the ... gravy ... [illegible] ... for about 2 hours ... careful watch that the liquid does not boil away, add more if necessary.

When meat is tender remove it to a hot platter and stir the remaining liquid ... [illegible] ... paprika ... [illegible] ... buttered noodles ... [illegible] ... from fresh vegetables ... mered along with the meat. Try this one.

After meat has been salted, peppered and browned, place a rack on the bottom of the pan, the meat on it and pour over a cup of boiling water. Cover ... and simmer until meat is tender, about 2 hours. Add ... medium potatoes and ... whole medium carrots ... and simmer for 15 minutes ... keep careful check that water does not boil away. If pot is covered tightly steam will stay ... [illegible]

... a small head of cabbage ... [illegible] ... pepper, cover, and simmer until tender, about 15 minutes. Remove meat and vegetables to a hot platter. Make a gravy from liquid left in pan by adding 1½ tablespoons flour mixed to a paste with 2 tablespoons water to each cup of liquid.

Powers Finds 'Canadian Beauty'

City Girls' 'Bounce' Excites Connoisseur

The bounciness of Victoria women, long the delight of Victoria males, has at last come into its own.

John Robert Powers has spotted it and he thinks it's wonderful.

John Robert Powers, of course, is the renowned New York model agent and one of the world's leading recognized connoisseurs of feminine pulchritude.

He spends most of his time looking at beautiful women, in the flesh or in pictures, and when he comes across something new and different, it excites him.

Two days in Vancouver and Victoria were enough to open his eyes to a new type of beauty—the Canadian beauty.

"It's really a discovery," he marveled. "I wish I could take it with me to distribute to other places."

The attributes of the Canadian beauty, according to Mr. Powers, are "bounce, enthusiasm and freshness." Canadian women have these in sufficient degree to "earn them a place among the most beautiful women in the world," he says.

Mr. Powers even likes the way Victoria and Vancouver women dress. They have, he said, "great individuality."

He added: "The most important thing a woman wears is the expression on her face. Here in Canada they wear it very well."

Meeting Hopes For Account Of Equalization

Delegates to the big Union of Municipalities convention which opens here today expect some clarification of the provincial government's new assessment equalization legislation.

They may get it from either Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black or [illegible] ... scheduled to address the opening session of the convention today.

The municipalities' reception of the legislation has been doubtful.

Even greater doubt has been raised by [illegible] difference of opinion between the B.C. Assessors' Association and a group of Vancouver Island assessors [illegible] of Victoria, presided at Nanaimo yesterday.

A difference worded resolution [illegible] with the assessment equalization ... delegates. It was framed originally by the B.C. Assessors' Association.

The Island group's objects that the [illegible] which were used to gather sample information used by the office of the assessment equalization commissioner to prepare a yardstick for equalizing assessment [illegible].

But some delegates feel their municipalities will get a better break [illegible] under the government's equalization scheme.

At Nanaimo Island assessors [illegible] approved.

The difference of opinion between the assessors' groups has [illegible] lessen confusion among delegates.

Precedent from 1950

$5,000 Likely Sum For Disaster Relief

If Victoria follows the precedent of the time of the Winnipeg flood of 1950, it will contribute at least $5,000 to Toronto disaster relief.

Neighbor municipalities, it was indicated last night, will take immediate decisions on their contributions. However, [illegible] had already donated $5,000.

B.C.'s $100,000 contribution came from the B.C. [illegible] Emergency Fund [illegible] at the time of the Fraser River disaster of 1948. It had $900,000 to [illegible] Premier W. A. C. Bennett said yesterday.

FURTHER MEASURE

Although the premier implied that the flood fund's $100,000 would be considered B.C.'s official donation, the cabinet is understood to have discussed a possible further relief measure without reaching a decision.

Members of the government [illegible] questioned would not commit themselves on the possibility of B.C. augmenting the $100,000 donation.

The city's decision will be reached at a meeting of the finance committee Monday.

But Victoria has authorized organization of a special disaster relief fund to which citizens may contribute through the city treasurer, clerk or assessor at City Hall.

Receipts will be issued.

In Oak Bay, Reeve F. F. Nottis said the question of contribution would probably be discussed tonight when council meets.

Saanich will consider its policy Monday and Esquimalt's Reeve A. C. Wurtele said he is sure that municipality will give assistance if it is found the need for help exists.

Mrs. Gladys Borthwick, [illegible] Courtney, remained in hospital for chest X-rays.

The accident was reported at about 6 p.m. by John A. Omand, 927 Rupert, who said his car hit Mrs. Borthwick as she crossed the street at Blanshard and Broughton. He said she refused aid.

Shortly after 10 p.m. Mrs. Borthwick called police and said she was in pain and having difficulty breathing. She was taken to hospital in a police car.

Winter Winds Buffet Island

Another Big Blow Faces Victoria As Gale Gathers Force Over Sea

Buffeted yesterday by the first gale-force blasts of winter, Victoria and Vancouver Island face another big blow today.

A low pressure area moving in fast over the Pacific from the southwest was expected to hit lower Vancouver Island with gale force early this morning, the government weather office at Gonzales reported last night.

Instruments recorded a peak gust of 59 mph shortly after 11 a.m. at the height of yesterday's storm. The gale warning went into effect at 3 a.m. Tuesday, although an earlier warning had been issued to small boats.

Little serious damage was reported in the city or on the Island although telephone communications to the north were knocked out for a time and early flights from Patricia Bay Airport to Vancouver were delayed for up to an hour during the morning.

FISHERMEN SAVED

At Tahsis, off the Island's West Coast, a Vancouver tugboat and a surf vessel teamed up to rescue two Ucluelet fishermen who were stranded when their small boat sank in heavy seas.

Names of the rescued men were not immediately known.

Shawnigan Lake, Cherry Point and Mill Bay areas were without power from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. after falling trees fouled cables. Cordova Bay and Keating had a one-hour breakdown from 10 until 11 a.m., B.C. Electric reported.

Prospect Lake was also without power for an hour.

Caught by a gust as she was leaving Esquimalt to take up her station in the Pacific, the weathership "St. Catharines" lost a little paint when she scraped the wharf.

Radio station CJVI was off the air from 10 to 11 a.m. after its transmitter at Cedar Hill Cross Road suffered wind damage.

Restatement Due On Party's Aims

A growing group of Progressive Conservatives in Ottawa is working on restatement of the Conservative position in Canada, Davie Fulton, Kamloops PC member in the federal house, said here last night.

Mr. Fulton told a well-attended organization meeting of the Esquimalt-Saanich branch of the new B.C. Council of the Progressive Conservative Party in Canada that he couldn't divulge details yet "because it is still unofficial."

But he said the group felt the time is ripe for an "assessment and restatement of the basic and fundamental principles of the party."

He said he was prepared to discuss two broad main tenets of the party, its foundation on an "attempt to apply Christian principles in a practical and workmanlike way to the problem of government" and a belief in Canada's position as "a British country within the Commonwealth."

WORD BATTLE

He objected to the Liberal government's position in seeking—unsuccessfully—to remove the word "Royal" from Royal Mail, attempts he called "surreptitious," to remove the word "Dominion" from government language and the efforts "of some Liberals" to obtain a flag for Canada without the Union Jack.

"Some Liberals won't rest until they [illegible] which this country is based," he said.

He called them "narrow-minded nationalists and isolationists."

"Are we going to continue as the kind of nation based on a British heritage and a proud Commonwealth position, or are we going to risk being absorbed by the U.S.?" he asked.

Pearkes Holds Meeting

PCs' New Setup Starts in Victoria

At a meeting here last night called by Progressive Conservative federal member for Esquimalt-Saanich Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, local party members established the first of the new federal PC associations in B.C.

The move was part of a province-wide drive on the part of federal party leaders to set up a purely federal organization separate from the present provincial body.

General Pearkes said 10 years of [illegible] behind the move.

He said B.C. [illegible] had been unique in Canada with a policy of channeling federal party business through delegates elected by the different provincial associations.

He said a B.C. council of the National Progressive Conservative Association of Canada had already been set up and had held one meeting in Vancouver.

Its formation had the support of federal leader George Drew, General Pearkes said. He quoted Mr. Drew as saying the party couldn't make an exception in British Columbia to policy followed in the rest of the country.

The move to a federal organization in this province started after the executive of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association passed a vote of no confidence in Mr. Drew at Vernon last Easter.

Progressive Conservative leader George Drew may visit Victoria "before Christmas" to attend a second meeting of the newly-formed federal constituency PC association in Saanich-Esquimalt, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, said last night.

"We who work with Mr. Drew know he is a capable leader," General Pearkes said. He charged provincial leader Deane Finlayson wanted all Progressive Conservative matters channeled through him.

He said the erstwhile B.C. policy of appointing delegates to an annual PC convention in the province from provincial riding associations meant federal matters got "squeezed out."

General Pearkes said he had asked the provincial association in his constituency to change its constitution so that persons interested primarily in the federal field could attend the annual PC convention in British Columbia without having to be appointed by a provincial riding association.

VICTORIA BY DAY AND NIGHT

BY BARNEY McKINLEY

It's not every day you get a chance to read a June 2, 1916 B.C. Electric Buzzer.

(An ideal day would be June 2, 1916, but then you would probably have got through it by now unless you are a very slow reader.)

For that matter there are even fewer days when you get a chance to read a May 26, 1916 Buzzer because that was a week before they started publishing it.

Actually when they did start publishing they didn't call it the Buzzer at all but something like "Let the Reader Decide." And along about July 7 the reader decided to call it the Buzzer.

First prize for thinking up the name of the new BCE publication was $15 "divided equally," an early edition says, between seven winners. This worked out to $2.142857 and so on per person, or one of the toughest days in the history of the accounting department.

An interesting point lies in the fact a single second prize winner who wanted to call the weekly pamphlet "Tact and Contact" won $10, and a single third prize winner was presented $5 for giving out with "Rail Rays."

First editor of the Buzzer—even before it was the Buzzer—was T. R. Myers, St. Charles Street, who liked the job so well he stayed on explaining about what happens to transportation company profits until 1949.

Incidentally Mr. Myers says no matter what was written in early Buzzers he feels the company gave each first prize winner $15 and didn't actually try to divide $15 into seven equal parts—because to be strictly fair about it they would be going yet.

That June 2 edition of the soon-to-be-named Buzzer sure brings back memories, none of which I recollect personally.

It was a day when automobiles were just starting to get numerous and a parking place was any place you stopped—either by putting on the brakes or breaking an axle.

Often enough this was on the car tracks and added to the schedule problems of street cars already hampered by such things as broken-down dray wagons and runaway shays, as the Buzzer points out while advising riders to be patient if the street car service is delayed.

The "actual process" of cooking with electricity was being advertised and a new company ruling said only lap dogs would be allowed on cars because patrons were being disturbed by numerous dog fights.

Also by dogs jumping in their laps and slicking their faces. If they already had a lap dog this started another fight.

Spitting in street cars was also beginning to lose favor. A Buzzer brief noted "few if any street car passengers object to the law against spitting."

Patrons were also advised not to back off cars, because automobiles couldn't always be trusted to stop and might carry them a block further than they wanted to go.

Another piece of advice that has stood the test of the years was the one urging riders, if standing, to take hold of a strap or seat handle and "brace for starting."

The jokes, of course, were much like the ones present editor Morley Collins uses today.

Like: "Where's the human fly today?" "He can't appear. His wife swatted him."

Wragg Defends Right Of Firemen To Speed

DUNCAN—The "moral right" of firemen to speed when answering a fire call was argued successfully in police court yesterday by Mayor J. C. Wragg.

He was invited to speak by Magistrate Col. A. C. Sutton, who later dismissed a charge of careless driving against Norman Headley, a captain of the Duncan volunteer fire department.

Evidence was that Mr. Headley and George Sanderson, deputy chief, were coming down Hospital Hill October 2 and were 150 to 175 feet from the intersection of Jubilee and Third Streets when a car left a stop sign and tried to cross the road.

The Headley car struck the other vehicle [illegible] feet causing minor injuries to Mrs. Kerber.

Magistrate Sutton referred to a city bylaw which specified that a "fire department apparatus has the right-of-way at all times over all streets and thoroughfares."

Mayor Wragg said that firemen are expected to get to a fire quickly and it is the first few minutes which count.

"I do not condone speed, but argue strongly against restricting the fire department to the speed limit," he said.

Beatings Described In Court

LADNER, B.C. (CP) — A witness testified in police court here Tuesday that Robert Wells, charged with murder in the death of Victoria Woo, had beaten the woman before she died August 22.

Testifying at Wells' preliminary hearing, Raymond Desjarlay said he lived at the Wells home during July and had seen Wells beat Miss Woo on several occasions.

Desjarlay said he had repeatedly warned the accused about striking the woman. He added that Wells always promised not to beat the woman again and had pleaded with him not to tell police.

Another witness, Const. Terrance Brennan of the Delta Municipal Police, said Wells told him Miss Woo had fallen out of bed and struck her head on the wall on the morning of her death.

Death Appeal Seeks New Testimony

The B.C. Court of Appeal may hear examination of witnesses prepared to support fresh evidence in the case of Lawrence B. Vincent whose appeal against a murder conviction is before the court.

The court Tuesday issued a general order for such examination, to be held at Vancouver hearings if required.

The court then would decide whether the fresh evidence is admissible on the appeal. Appellant's counsel R. J. Hughes claims the evidence is that the murdered girl, Donna Corbett, was seen after the time the Crown alleged she was murdered.

Vincent was convicted by an Assize Court jury at Quesnel of murdering the 12-year-old girl September 12, 1953. He was sentenced to hang last September 21 but a stay of execution until November 30 was granted, pending appeal.

The court ruled Tuesday that it will begin hearings today on the main grounds of appeal: that there is no evidence to show the appellant committed the crime.

Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League, is getting [illegible] problems [illegible]. First, there was [illegible] the use of an ineligible player in Vancouver. Calgary To Get Derby International LONDON (CP)—Bert Mozley, 31-year-old soccer player for England and Derby County, today said he plans to emigrate to Canada next January.

Mozley, three times at right back for England, has been offered a job managing a Calgary hotel. He has a tentative sea booking for January 8, 1955.

Directors of Derby County will meet Thursday to consider Mozley's case. Derby County, relegated to second-division status after the 1952-53 season, cannot force him to stay in Britain. On the other hand, Mozley won't be able to play soccer in Canada without the club's consent.

Mozley, once captain of Derby, would have been 10 years with the club next May. He was dropped from the England side after an injury.

He toured Canada with the England team in 1950, "so I'm not going blindfolded," he said in a telephone interview from Aldershot.

"I was in Calgary for a night and a day and I reckon I got the hang of it."

"I'll play soccer in Canada if I can get a team if they want me and if I get permission from Derby."

It was on the 1950 tour that Mozley met his prospective employer, Arthur Davies, son of the former England and Derby outside left, George Davies. Mozley's wife, Jean, and two daughters Lynne and Lea, plan to go to Canada next summer.

Toronto's Grim Experience

THERE is a finality to the sweep of the untamed forces of nature that leaves human beings impotent, with a feeling of helplessness in that nothing could have averted the destruction. That is true of Toronto's sad loss, where 78 lives were taken in a wholly unpredictable fashion through flash floods in the wake of a roving Atlantic storm. The profound sympathy of the nation has gone out to the hundreds of victims of the disaster there and elsewhere, an expression which British Columbia and its leading cities have fully endorsed. What happened in a few hours in stricken Toronto might have taken place almost anywhere, and it would have been just as unavoidable.

The intensely tragic circumstances in Toronto's black night were heightened by the fact that many individuals drowned while within sight of help and rescue. The gale, darkness, flooding and inevitable confusion must have meant a time of terror to those who were caught in low-lying areas. The tragic circumstance of families being wiped out with, in one instance, a sole survivor brings the loss home to every household in the nation. Official circles have expressed their concern and deep regret as was fitting; but the scars will remain for many who went through the disaster.

The prompt action of the flood control board of British Columbia setting aside $100,000 to help alleviate Toronto flood distress will be approved most heartily by citizens of this province, with memories of the Fraser River destruction a few years ago. So, too, will be Mayor Harrison's creation of a special relief fund in this, the capital city of the province. It is certain that in spite of their own pre-occupations and other calls on their resources, Victoria citizens will wish to help at once in this common cause. The Mayor's Fund was announced yesterday, but the need for it and for many more like it requires no enlargement.

The same condition applies for several other communities in the path of the storm, as it laid a swathe of destruction along an arc of the continent. The fact that the gale was known, watched, and its course fairly accurately predicted did little to minimize its awful effects. Within the present scope of human knowledge one cannot stop a hurricane or change its path. All that is left to do is to succor those who have been hurt, some perhaps for the rest of their lives. In the postwar period Canada has known no disaster which has drawn a more heart-warming and feeling response from the nation.

Still at the Helm

A CABINET shuffle involving 24 senior and junior ministers would be for Canada a major government event but in the larger British sphere the Churchillian changes announced this week betoken no such upheaval. Apparently they are made principally to advance to senior status ministers who have made good in minor posts and to bring into prominance younger men of promise in the Conservative Party; and also to permit certain retirements from public life, including that of Field Marshal Earl Alexander, this country's former governor-general. The main figures in the British cabinet are unaffected by the redistribution of portfolios.

Of interest to Canadians will be Lord Alexander's termination as defense minister, a post he took up only at the urging of Sir Winston Churchill and not from personal preference. In all probability he has been none too happy as a politician, an uncomfortable realm for most military men, and while he performed creditably periodic reports suggest he has not been too conspicuous in this unfamiliar role. He is still youngish, however, and possessed of special talents that may be placed again at his country's service.

Chief speculation has centred on the future of Prime Minister Churchill himself, but his cabinet changes provide no clue. Observers have been predicting his retirement almost daily for the past year, not from the standpoint of wishful thinking but in view of Sir Winston's age. He will be 80 on November 30 and by normal rote could be expected to relinquish office any moment. The great Churchill is beyond the normal, however, so the political prophets have still to wait and see. Special events are planned in Britain to mark his debut as an octogenarian, and possibly thereafter some indication of his intentions will be made known. Meanwhile it is apparent he will continue to dominate the British scene, with his heir-apparent Mr. Eden his close colleague and confidant and as foreign secretary the figure next in cabinet importance.

Danger Season for Cyclists

SEVERAL recent accidents are a reminder that the season of worst danger to cyclists is beginning. Bad weather, poor visibility, early dusk and darkness all contribute to make the streets hazardous for two-wheeled traffic unless the rules of the road and the dictates of common sense are observed. While it is the responsibility of drivers of motor vehicles to take all reasonable precautions against running down cyclists, they can scarcely be blamed for collisions involving those who take silly risks. For their own safety riders of bicycles need to remember that all the rules of road apply to them just as much as to motorists.

Parents who let their children have bicycles also share the responsibility for avoidance of accident. It is up to them to see that young riders are properly equipped. Far too many parents appear to think that no further teaching is needed after a child has learned how to balance his bicycle; and far too many also allow out of sight children too young to be riding bicycles without supervision. In the matter of lights and rear reflectors it is up to the parents of all juvenile cyclists to see to it that the machines either are properly equipped or are brought home before dusk.

Cyclists ride at some risk under modern traffic conditions in the best of circumstances, but when youngsters cycle at night in groups of two or three and without lights they are inviting trouble. On a black night and a wet street such riders are often indistinguishable to vehicular drivers until it is too late. Such accidents, and it could be remembered that they include their share of fatalities, can be avoided by forethought.

The police, especially in the suburbs, could afford to be a little more vigilant in this connection. From general observation in the early evening it looks as if there are more unlighted bicycles on the streets than lighted ones, and little official attention seems to be paid to these shortcomings. That is misplaced leniency as far as the riders are concerned, and unfair to drivers.

Interpreting the News

Powers Tend to Blindness

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

PRESIDENT Tubman of Liberia, now visiting the United States, thinks powers like the United States and Britain should get over the idea that the problems of under-developed countries are their's alone to solve.

Nationalism among the big powers, he said, prevents them from seeing some of the wrong in themselves and rights in others.

"If the smaller nations that are in the majority were given an opportunity to express themselves they might be able to advance some suggestions that may be helpful."

He thinks the Western powers place too much emphasis on the efforts of the Communists to subvert national independence movements to their own purposes. This, he says, would not be permitted to obscure "one of the fundamental and far-reaching developments of the present century," the unremitting demand for independence by the heretofore subject or under-developed peoples.

That is one of the great problems of the time. The world's experience with Indonesia, for instance, has not been a happy one, nor is India pursuing what the West considers the best course.

In such times as these, with a great power standing ready to grab off every stray, where does the balance lie between the various independence movements and the community interest?

The trouble with a lot of independence movements is that people want to stand alone when they are incapable of it. Belgium and Holland and Norway, highly developed countries, and certainly independent, have learned that lesson within this century.

Coloring President Tubman's approach, of course, is the fact that Liberia has never been troubled either by Communism or colonialism. It was sponsored directly by the United States. One of the interesting things [illegible] the major job was done by private investment.

In these latter days, government aid is designed as the forerunner of private investment. But this runs into snags. In the first place, since it is government-sponsored, it is suspected as another form of colonialism.

From the security standpoint and from the economic standpoint about all the nations can do under present circumstances is to feel their way along, the large ones without arrogance and the small ones with intransigence.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

NOTHING comes quicker each year, it sometimes seems, than Armistice Day, or Remembrance Day as I should more properly call it. The armistice was broken—violently by the events that now make November 11 a dual memorial day.

And nothing symbolizes this yearly remembrance more vividly than the poppy. The poppy, blood-red, the flower of sacrifice that John McCrae wrote about. You remember his lines, perhaps the most famous wartime verse ever written in English:

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Another Canadian poet, Robert W. Service, although he called himself just a rhymer, penned these two lines, among others:

Poppies, you try to tell me, glowing there in the wheat;
Poppies! Ah no! You mock me; it's blood—I tell you, it's blood.

And blood-red they are, a quick to the mind and the heart as November 11 draws night.

Yet another Canadian, Max Aitken as he was then, wrote this of Ypres:

"The graveyard of Canada in Flanders is large. It is very large. Those who lie there have left their mortal remains on alien soil. To Canada they have bequeathed their memories and their glory."

Yes, Flanders is large, very large. For Flanders and the poppy now embrace Europe, Asia, Africa, the Seven Seas. Two generations of Canadians lie on many a foreign field, although as another poet, Rupert Brooke, wrote of his own countrymen, on soil that will be for ever Canada.

Wear a poppy then, for their sake.

The men who fashion the poppies are of the breed that lies in Flanders and other fields. For them the larks still bravely sing, happily, and the dawn and the sunset glows. But they have not forgotten. They have taken up the torch of remembrance.

And now they offer it to me and to you, in the shape of a blood-red poppy.

The poppies are on sale, or shortly will be. The money they bring goes to help other veterans, men who for one reason or another have difficulty in coping with what is nowadays a difficult economic life.

Those men of our large fallen army would be glad, I think, to know that in their name a former comrade drew our sympathy and aid. And especially through the flower that marks their sacrifice, the blood-red poppy.

Buy yours early and wear it proudly, every day until November 11.

It was yet another poet, Laurence Binyon, who penned this tender thought:

Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.

Do so with a poppy.

On the Record

Not Liberalism But Treason

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

IT has been discovered in Paris that complete transcripts of the meetings of the French National Defense Council have regularly been passed to the French Communists—i.e., to the Soviet Union.

These records of the most confidential inner-cabinet discussions began going to the Communists late in May when Joseph Laniel was prime minister. During the Geneva Conference, where the Indo-China settlement was negotiated, the Communist axis was thus in full possession of all the facts of the French military position.

On September 10 the National Defense Council discussed the new SHAPE strategy. This involves all NATO states. The Communists got those minutes, too.

Every precaution was taken against mechanical recorders, but the leaks continued. They could have come from only one of the three men permitted to take notes during the sessions: General Ganeval, special military adviser; Andre Segalat, government secretary, and Jean Mons, secretary of the defense council. Evidence shows that the Communists got the verbatim documents from Mons, via his closest assistants—Jean Turpin and Roger Lebrusee, both of whom were known by everybody in the cabinet to be Communist sympathizers. They passed them to a Moroccan journalist, Andre Baranes, a member of the Communist party, who testified he was also serving the French police commissioner, Jean Dides, to whom he delivered the secret documents of the council and also information on the Communists after careful deletion by the party.

If this story is fully unraveled others may be involved, possibly De Gaullists, who by the strange affinity that unites extremes have often made common cause with the Communists as the Communists once did with the Nazis.

Jacques Duclos, French Communist leader, has of course denied that he ever dealt with Baranes, called it an American plot and those who are working to unveil it "McCarthyites" This greatly compliments the Wisconsin senator.

How could two known pro-Communists be tolerated in the inner defense council while France was actually at war with Communists in Indo-China? Charitable interpretations attribute it to French "tolerance." This is nonsense. Tolerance is not a conspicuous French characteristic. The French shot Pierre Laval and committed Marshall Petain to life imprisonment for collaborating with the Germans when the German armies were deep in France, the French armies had collapsed, and Paris had been abandoned.

But the French Communists emerged after the defeat of Germany by Britain, Russia and America as "heroes of the resistance." They posed as the forefront of French patriotism. Yet if any people have reason to know the full mendacity of this claim, it should be the French. For the French Communists from the opening of the Second World War until the fall of France did all they could to encompass French defeat.

Party Leader Maurice Thorez fled to Moscow at the outbreak of the war. During the entire fighting between Germany and France the Russo-German pact was in existence. When Hitler entered Paris, Stalin sent him congratulations — despite the fact that France had a mutual aid treaty with the Soviets negotiated by no other than Pierre Laval. The war, as far as France was concerned, began in September, 1939, and ended with the fall of France in June, 1940, when the Germans after some seven months of "phony" war smashed through the low countries to mop up France in two months.

During this whole period the French Communists spread defeatism in army ranks and among the working class population. They denounced the French battle against Hitler as an "imperialist war." In their defeatism they were in collusion with French Fascists, international communist agents from Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary posing as refugees from Nazism (why didn't they take refuge in Russia?) hid themselves among genuine refugees, caused the arrest of thousands of "aliens" willing to die for France and liberty, and even denounced such loyal aliens to the French police.

I could name such agents, among them men who later appeared in America as pity-evoking victims of Nazism, or showed up in their original countries as functionaries of stooge governments.

A French underground resistance existed during the fighting war, harassing the Germans. There were no Communists in it. The Communists joined the resistance only after the attack on the Soviet Union, then they displayed superior capacities for guerrilla organization and have claimed credit for their "patriotism" ever since. But they never fought for France. They collaborated with the Germans for the destruction of France and with the Russians for taking her captive.

In no country is the Communist record of treason—real treason, wartime treason—clearer. And Communist treason is not a "red herring." The Communist states alone among the states of the world have elevated treason into a perpetual instrument of their own national policies. And though Communist and non-Communist states may be able to "co-exist" in the same world, non-Communist governments will never be able even that embraces Communists is not life them, and the sooner all learn it the better.

The "liberalism" (or the rightism) that embraces Communists is not liberalism or patriotism. It, too, is treason once removed.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IT is my impression in recent years that red tape is going out of fashion. There used to be a good deal of red tape about ordinary everyday business. A lot of red tape was involved in getting a small loan from the bank. Now the banks advertise and invite you to come in and get a loan. Real estate deals were wrapped up in red tape with such complicated knots that it was never safe to employ only one lawyer. It was wiser to have two.

Now a real estate deal can be handled by a society matron, temporarily retired from society and working for a living, who, smoking a cigarette chummily, tosses deeds and mortgages and down payments about as lightly as she might a salad. Even getting a visa or a passport, provided you have a reasonable right to it, is a quite simple matter. Income tax is no longer bound up like a mummy in red tape. It has become as simple as getting hit on the head with a hammer.

The suspicion grows that red tape, as we knew it until quite recent years, was a childish device employed by the professional and white-collar class to keep themselves in a job and to mystify and impress us yokels.

I keep my sweaters, sports shirts, hunting socks and other woolen treasures in old pillow slips I nadge from my wife. I tie the necks of these bags with tape. It occurred to me that if I used red tape I would not mislay the little pieces of tape every time I open a bag to get out or put away a sweater. The white tape I have been using has the most intergal habit of disappearing the minute I untie it and lay it aside. Half the time, I pack it back in the bag with the sweaters.

Do you know, I couldn't buy red tape anywhere? I tried at the notions counter of two big department stores.

"Red tape?" said the young lady behind the counter. "Never even heard of it."

Ah, what a wonderful generation, these young! Never even heard of red tape.

They have what they call bias tape in red, blue, green and a dozen colors. But it is no good for tying pillow slips into storage bags. I tried in the five-and-ten, I tried in the uptown ladies' wear and fancy goods shop. No red tape. Only black and white.

It is wonderful to think that everything nowadays is reduced to black and white.

The Mona Lisa Smile

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

FOUR AND A HALF centuries ago Leonardo da Vinci painted a portrait of the wife of Zanobi del Gioconda. It took him four years, on and off, and at each sitting he had soft music played in the background so that the rapt expression on the face of Mrs. del Giobonda (better known as Mona Lisa) would not wear thin.

Since then, Mona Lisa's enigmatic smile, which to some people looks more like a smirk, but which is supposed to exercise an uncontrollable fascination over anyone who looks at it, has been the subject of endless speculation.

One of the more romantic legends has it that the smile is a forced one and that the lady is concealing some great grief of torment. In recent years Nat "King" Cole has been responsible for propagating this theory through the medium of a popular song. A more mundane explanation, advanced in a short story by Gerald Kersh, is that Mona Lisa smiled like that because she had had toothache.

Now a member of the American Academy of Opthalmology and Otolaryngology has come up with the proposition that the smile was the [illegible] in her throat. From all newspaper accounts, the good doctor, who specializes in lumps in the throat, did not make a very strong case for his thesis. But at least his theory confirms the feeling of many people, who have gazed on Mona Lisa with no great fascination, that her expression best approximates that of a well-bred lady at dinner who has just swallowed an olive pit but who refuses publicly to acknowledge it.

With the Classics

Oh grief, beyond all other griefs,
when fate
First leaves the young heart lone and desolate
In the wide world, without that only tie
For which it lov'd to live or
fear'd to die;
Lorh as the hung-up lute, that ne'er hath spoken
Since the sad day its master
chord was broken!

Driver Pleads Guilty To Two Charges; Sentence Set Today

Emile Despins, 948 Tolmie Avenue, whose car, police say, struck two girls, will be sentenced in city court today on charges of impaired driving and of driving without a license.

Despins pleaded guilty to both charges before Magistrate H. C. Hall yesterday and was remanded.

Police testified that at 4.55 p.m. Monday on Douglas at Topaz Avenue, Despins' car struck Kirsten Lindherst, 13, of 540 Cecelia Avenue, and Conrie Norby, 12, of 3265 Harriet Road.

One was thrown 30 feet, the other received only abrasions, police said.

Kirsten required six stitches for a head cut and also suffered leg abrasions. Conrie sustained minor cuts.

The two girls and a companion, Verla Mowat, 13, of 19 Hampton Road, were walking west in a stop-when-occupied zone. Police testified witnesses said there was no attempt to stop the car before it hit the girls.

Despins was 100 feet past the collision point when he stopped, police testified.

Verla Mowat escaped injury.

Henry Hubscher, 518 Joffre Street, was fined $10 or three days on pleading guilty to driving across a double centre line on Douglas Street. Raymond D. Williams, 35 Obed Avenue, was fined $25 or five days for driving without a license.

An army sergeant, Hugh R. Bowden, of 635 Hillside Avenue, received a lecture and a sentence of $250 or 12 days in jail from Magistrate Hall in city court yesterday.

Sergeant Bowden, charged with impaired driving, was told it seemed unreasonable he would sit four hours in a beer parlor and have four beers. "I don't think four would have brought you to such a condition," the magistrate said.

The magistrate said in judgment that Sergeant Bowden made a wide turn off Store Street, endangering traffic. He was warned by police to have coffee before driving, but on finishing that beverage immediately drove his car without waiting a reasonable time, the magistrate said.

Mansell G. McKellar of HMCS Crusader had double trouble in city court. He was fined $35 and his license suspended on pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving October 9 in Beacon Hill Park. Police said he skidded on wet pavement and struck a tree stump, causing injury to three persons in his car.

He pleaded guilty to driving without eyeglasses October 7 and was fined $25.

Joseph Gohier, HMCS Naden, the holder of a learner's driver's license, was fined a total of $30 or seven days in jail on pleading guilty to charges of driving without liability insurance and of not obeying a traffic signal at Douglas and Fisgard Streets October 9.

NEW YORK (AP) — The bureau of internal revenue Monday filed a tax lien against the National Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case for $124,121. The committee was concerned with the defense of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, executed atom spies. The government contended that the group collected between $30,000 and $500,000 from November 1, 1951, to October 31, 1953, and that the money was subject to income taxes.

PTA Activities

Folk Dancers Entertain James Bay Group

More than 75 members of James Bay PTA were treated to an exhibition of folk dancing by pupils of Mrs. Katherine Costain at the regular monthly meeting last week.

It was moved the question of having a sidewalk laid in front of James Bay Elementary School be taken up with city council immediately. Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council will also be asked to assist in this effort.

Unless a sidewalk is put in immediately, the front entrance to the kindergarten cannot be used, and the safety of children is at stake, the meeting was told.

Plans for the Fall Fair, to be held November 19, are well in hand, it was reported.

McKenzie Avenue PTA will meet at 8 p.m. today in the school. The association will honor Mrs. Exton upon her retirement after many years' service. An open invitation is extended to all.

First meeting of Prospect Lake PTA craft classes will be held Wednesday at the school between 8 and 10 p.m. Miss Dorothy Austin will instruct members in the making and decorating of fancy candles.

Everyone attending is asked to bring a large tin of melting wax; one package of parawax; old candles, preferably colored; wicks from old candles; molds (odd shapes, cookie tins, etc.); and an apron.

These classes are not solely for PTA members and anyone interested in learning various crafts this winter is urged to attend.

Regular monthly meeting of Langford PTA will be held at 7.45 p.m. today, in the Community Hall. Fire Chief Rodney Bayles will give a short talk on fire prevention.

Parents should not criticize a teacher in front of a child, John Stubbs Memorial School PTA members decided in a group discussion Monday on PTA objectives.

The meeting also agreed on several other points: that parents should co-operate in seeing that children do their homework; that parents with individual grievances should discuss them with the teacher rather than airing them at PTA meetings; and that PTA groups should not concern themselves unduly with affairs outside their own communities — especially affairs that involve politics.

Tolmie PTA decided not to hold a regular meeting in November and scheduled its next monthly meeting for 8 p.m., December 13.

However, it was decided to hold an auction sale in the school auditorium at 7 p.m., November 12.

What every wife should know ...about husbanding

A husband, says the dictionary, is a man married to a woman. A second definition states that to husband is 'to manage thriftily'.

How to manage a husband and how to manage a budget are two things every wife needs to know if she wants a happy home.

"We're careful with money in our family but we can't seem to build up our savings," says one wife. "There are so many things to save for—a home of our own, the children's education, the days when we are old. Sure—we want to save—but how?"

Thrift helps, of course—but it's not the total answer to building up savings. A regular, systematic savings plan is needed too.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadian families have adopted the Canada Savings Bonds way to build up a worthwhile reserve for the important things ahead.

If you need the money in the meantime your Canada Savings Bonds are immediately cashable at full face value —at any bank—at any time.

IS England finished? Did America win the war? Don't look to me for answers. I want to quote an American writer's views which have some bearing on these silly questions.

The man's name is Alex Smith. He writes in the Aberdeen, Washington, Daily World (circulation 17,000). Someone clipped his piece and sent it to me in a rage. As a Canadian with many roots in Britain, I was inclined to fly into a rage myself, but thought better of it.

Instead, I decided to pass the Smith opus along to the readers of this newspaper, and find out their feelings. Glance over this little piece of delicately-fashioned prose. If you like, send your opinions to Alex Smith, care of the Aberdeen Daily World, or to me—or both.

Here is the article as Smith wrote it:

"Radio and newspaper reports indicate the imminent retirement of Winston Churchill. This incident cannot be long delayed. Father Time will attend to it if he does not retire voluntarily.

"The passage of Churchill will be the end of England. He is the last relict of the extinct British Empire, or as he would call it, 'Empah.'

"England played a large part, at times a dominant part in world affairs for quite a while. There were reasons for this. For one thing, her insular position forced her into maritime pursuits and to the maintenance of a powerful navy. For another, the pugnacious and ambitious temperament of her people prompted her to colonise or subjugate many areas in a newly-discovered world, and these offered large opportunities for wealth getting by commerce and exploitation.

"There followed one of the most spectacular periods of wealth-getting ever seen. Not so great in actual dollars as modern American tycoons have achieved in exploiting the resources and people of this nation, but there were not so many dollars in existence then. England's wealth, coupled with her native cockiness and fighting spirit, made her the bully of the world.

"All this could not have happened save for her pre-eminence on the sea; her navy and merchant marine. Her commerce led her to industrialization and wealth earlier than her neighbors. While continental countries warred over boundaries, England's insular position left her free from invasion and at liberty to become the workshop of the world.

"But this was not all. It was in the temperament of her people. Another race in her position might have had quite a different history. Just as the accidental trait of temperament made ancient Athens the light of the world, so English temperament made England.

"She made few friends and earned none. We would have been justified in going to war with her—as we did on two occasions—at any time until the rise of Germany frightened her and led her to fawn on us for military aid. And well she did, for we saved her in the first world war.

"But England's number was up. Her finances had excited the cupidity of the shrewd international financiers, who expropriated her wealth as she had expropriated the weaker peoples'. Then, for reasons of their own, they moved their operations to the richer field of America and left England a shell, an empty chrysalis.

"Churchill is a relict, the sole survivor of a bygone period when England was a force, and often an evil force, to be reckoned with. She is now a decrepit ward and pensioner of our bounty, and that helps boost our taxes. Aside from taxation, we have little reason to mourn her passing."

* * *

Well, that's what Smith wrote. I won't make much comment on it, except to say that his column contains some truths, some unconscious distortions and some deliberate lies.

Does Smith represent any large segment of American opinion? Or is he a Communist provocateur trying in his small way to stir up bad feeling between the United States and its allies?

"Collector of what?" Geoff inquired blandly.

"Oh," the young man laughed, "didn't I say? Why fish, of course. I'm particularly interested in Indian fish, and I thought if these fish were actually rare, I might make a deal with the person who inherited them. To buy them of course, you understand."

"I understand," Geoff smiled. "But tell me, Mr. ——" He paused. "I don't believe I have your name."

"Ingersoll," the young man smiled. "Maurice Ingersoll. Do you mind if I examine the fish?"

"Up to a certain point," Geoffery said gently. "You may look at them through the glass, if you like."

"Why, thank you," the young man said. He stood up and bent over the bowl, frowning intently.

"My, my," he said an instant later. "These are exceptional. Very rare, indeed!"

"Oh, yes," Geoff said drily. "Very rare."

"Mr. O'Neil," the young man said abruptly, "I am prepared to pay a considerable price for these rare fish. Now, if I gave you a deposit of say $1,000, would you let me have the fish examined by a specialist? If they aren't what I want I'll return them and you may keep the down payment. Is that fair?"

"I can't speak for my client," Geoff said.

The young man frowned thoughtfully.

"Of course, of course," he said. "The only difficulty is that I'm leaving the country tomorrow and I'm not sure when I'll be able to get back. For that reason a quick decision is essential. Can't you, on your own authority, let me take the specimens for a few hours?"

"I cannot."

The young man stared intently at Geoff for a few seconds, then he sighed resignedly. His right hand moved slowly toward his overcoat pocket.

Geoff stood up and jammed his own hand into his pocket.

"A very unwise move, Mr. Ingersoll," he said slowly. "Don't force me to get rough. I play for keeps. If you've finished your speech you can get out."

The young man let his hand fall to his side. "You're quite definite," he smiled. "I'll leave, but I shouldn't wonder that we'll be meeting again. Pleasant dreams."

He sauntered carelessly toward the door.

"If we meet again," Goff said pleasantly, "don't forget to duck."

"I shan't," the young man grinned. Then he opened the door and stepped into the corridor.

Geoff sat down again, his eyes focused on the door . . . Ten seconds passed and then the quietness of the building was shattered by two deafening pistol shots, following each other so closely that they blended into almost one sound.

A hoarse, terrible scream followed the shots.

Geoff sprang to his feet and sprinted across the office. As he jerked open the door and dove to the floor of the corridor, another shot sounded, and the light in the corridor smashed into a thousand pieces. Darkness, impenetrable and dangerous, fell over the hall.

Geoff heard someone groan, not a dozen feet from where he crouched. Jerking his gun from his pocket, he crawled cautiously in the direction of the sound.

Garden Notes

Few Gardeners Plant Quince

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Most people are delighted when they find a quince tree in the garden of the house they move into, but very few gardeners ever think to plant a quince on their own. Yet is is just about the most trouble free of all the fruit trees.

True, the distinctive flavor of the quince isn't everybody's cup of tea, but a few quarters of quince in a batch of apple sauce or in a dish of stewed pears is delicious, and quince jelly is out of this world.

HAS LONG LIFE

The quince tree lives to a ripe old age, and makes a drooping, rounded head which is very attractive as a specimen tree on a lawn or near a pool. The foliage is similar to the pear, but covered with a silvery down. The flowers, which are large and white, are borne singly, and not in clusters like apples and pears. It is the fruit, though, which is most unusual and attractive. It is shaped rather like a pear, and is at first covered thickly with a wooly down. This fuzz gradually thins out and disappears as the fruit matures, and the skin turns a lovely golden yellow, often with a slight russeting.

CHARACTERISTIC AROMA

Throughout the life of the fruit there is a characteristic aroma, which becomes stronger as the fruit ripens. It is a sweet, musty scent, yet with a sharp tang to it, rather difficult to describe, but one which lingers in the memory of those who like it.

The aroma is so strong that quinces must always be stored by themselves, for otherwise apples and pears stored with them take on a quince flavor.

hve toazof

Quince trees are grown on their own roots, and don't have to be grafted. The trees are not very expensive, therefore, as the nurseryman can propagate them from cuttings quite easily. You can buy a tree of Bourgeat, which is the best variety, from local nurseries for $1.50 to $2.50, and for my money and shaply tree which produces big, fragrant blossoms and golden fruit against dark green leaves is worth a lot more than this.

BRANCHES PLACED

For the first few years, pruning is just done simply to get the branches placed just where you want them, and in later years the winter pruning resolves itself into doing a little simple thinning, because the quince has a natural habit of making twiggy growth. In old trees which have not been pruned for some years, the branches will sometimes twine around one another. Try to allow the tree to develop along its own lines, with just a little gentle persuasion to form the umbrella shape which is best for blossom and fruit bearing.

LAST PICKED

The quince is about the last of the fruits to be picked, and should be allowed to hang on the tree until November at least, or until we have had two or three frosts hard enough to put an ice crust on the puddles in the garden. The fruit will still be hard when picked, and will keep in store for several weeks, but they have a habit of ripening quite suddenly, and once mature, they won't keep.

Deadline Too Early Says Council

Esquimalt council would have liked more time to consider changes in the May 24 events of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association, Clr. G. K. Sammon said Monday night.

The association reported "much unfavorable comment" on lack of floats in the parade and asked for proposals regarding a later event, but council said the deadline of November 1 for proposals forced a reply of "no constructive suggestions."

A request by the Community Chest for a municipal donation was refused. Reeve A. C. Wurtele said it is policy not to donate to public drives, no matter how worthy.

Reeve Wurtele said he expected almost all Uganda-McNaughton residents would favor a local improvement sewer project, to cost more than $35,000, or $27.36 a unit on a 20-year plan. Work would start next spring and end within four months.

Council gave the Junior Chamber of Commerce permission to stage Little League baseball in Bullen Park next summer.

Pupils Offered Profit Booklet

An offer of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce to furnish copies of a booklet explaining the profit system to students graduating from high school, has been referred by the Greater Victoria School Board to John Gough, municipal inspector of schools.

Mr. Gough indicated he would discuss the offer with a committee of school principals with a view to determining the best means of distributing the booklets.

A letter from the chamber explained that a recent survey of 86 Canadian schools showed widespread misunderstanding among students about the profit system.

Election Pledges Violated, CCF Says of Social Credit

The Esquimalt-Saanich CCF Association has accused Premier W. A. C. Bennett's government of violating election promises with respect to B.C.'s natural resources.

A resolution passed by the association yesterday criticized the government for making major decisions on the disposition of natural resources without reference to the legislature.

"We urge the citizens of B.C., regardless of political attachment, to press the government to refer final decision on such matters to our elected representatives as the actions of the government to date have been in violation of election pledges by Premier Bennett," the resolution read.

The CCF members said water-power and mineral resources "are the property of all the people of B.C., both present and future generations," and that their development should be decided by the elected representatives of the people after "full and free discussion" in the legislature.

The group endorsed the CCF plan for action, designed to win the next provincial election, by pledging their financial support for the $200,000 pre-N.Y. election campaign.

The association backs the stand of the CCF national convention to recognize the Chinese Soviet government as the "rightful representative of China on the United Nations."

Members also supported a resolution asking the provincial government to set up a department of co-operatives and to impose milk price controls.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles
Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—
Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)— For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.® The price is only $1.19 a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember — if not entirely satisfied — your money will be refunded promptly.

Flood Chaos Eases

TORONTO (CP) — Order has gradually emerged from the grim chaos left by Hurricane Hazel in the western outskirts of Toronto.

But disaster crews were still recovering bodies from the silt and debris piled high by the Humber River, and an unconfirmed report was published that the Ontario death toll of last Friday's storm—now 78—may exceed 100 when the flooded Holland marsh is drained.

George Bryant, Toronto Star reporter, wrote that 25 may have perished when 7,000 acres of rich reclaimed farmland was deeply inundated and almost 3,000 persons were forced from their homes.

Police at Bradford, beside the marsh, discounted the report. They said they knew of only one man missing and he might be visiting Toronto.

Search parties in small boats poked among floating vegetation for signs of human bodies.

Besides the 78 dead, and apart from the reported Holland marsh missing, seven persons are missing and presumed drowned and nine are listed as missing.

It may be weeks before the facts are known. Huge pumps must remove millions of tons of water before the land is dry.

Tuesday the Humber, which claimed at least 57 lives in three Toronto suburbs in its mad race toward Lake Ontario, was back to normal—a quiet, harmless stream, unrecognizable as the Friday torrent that broke frame homes like matchsticks and tossed humans to their death like chins dolls.

From all parts of Canada, donations reached the Ontario Hurricane Relief Fund. It neared the $1,000,000 mark—one-tenth of its immediate objective—in the first day.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said a royal commission will be formed to determine the flood damage, first step toward making federal funds available for relief and rehabilitation in flood districts.

York township banned all future building in low-lying areas. Etobicoke township where most of the Humber River's slaughter happened, announced a similar order made in 1948 now will be strictly enforced.

LONG BRANCH, Ont. (BUP)—A man and his wife described by Reeve Marie Curtis as "human vultures," were charged Tuesday with stealing the food and relief supplies for victims of Toronto's floods.

TORONTO (CP) — Police at Markham, 10 miles north of here, said Tuesday the salvaged belongings of numerous flood victims in the area were stolen Monday night from the home of councillor Mrs. Alma Walker, where they had been stored. Officers said the thieves must have used a truck to cart away the furniture, clothing, bedding and foodstuffs.

Waiting, Hoping for Nancy

There's a home in Victoria for wee Nancy Thorpe, orphaned in Ontario's unprecedented floods. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Scroggs have everything ready for an adopted baby and their arms are open to receive Nancy . . . or some other little one, if red tape makes adoption of the Ontario infant impossible.

Red Tape May Crush Dream

Childless Victorians Eager To Adopt Orphan of Storm

A childless Victoria couple, who have been vainly seeking a baby for adoption for more than a year, yesterday offered a "made-to-order" home to four-month-old Nancy Thorpe, orphaned by the hurricane that struck Toronto Friday night.

Mrs. A. W. Scroggs, 35-year-old London-born wife, who was orphaned herself at 10, said she and her car salesman husband had been waiting for 14 months for a baby to adopt and had spent hours preparing for the day.

The couple was disappointed just a month ago, Mrs. Scroggs said, when an infant they were to take home was judged by authorities too ill to be adopted.

The Toronto infant Mrs. Scroggs seeks to mother was orphaned when her father, mother, brother and grandmother were drowned in Toronto's storm-flooded Etobicoke Creek.

Nancy was saved by Long Branch Fire Chief Albert Houston, who took her from her mother's arms and ferried her to the roof of a cement-block home. He was unable to return for the mother.

Mrs. Scroggs said she couldn't have children of her own, and that she and her husband had been placed on the city's list of prospective parents-by-adoption here.

She and her husband had been thoroughly examined by authorities to establish their fitness as parents, she said.

The childless couple, who came to Victoria seven years ago from England, spent the period of waiting for a child to adopt, by preparing a room "and everything a baby could want or need," Mrs. Scroggs told The Daily Colonist.

She said she had made ready everything from pins to bottles and had spent long hours knitting sweaters and baby socks. Blankets, nighties, bonnets and other articles of baby clothing she had made by hand, and she displayed them fondly.

Mrs. Scroggs said she hadn't taken children into her home on the temporary basis asked by the Victoria children's service, which seeks to restore youngsters to their true parents, "because I would grow too fond of them."

"I wouldn't want to let them go," she said.

The Victoria wife said she had cared for her sister's six children in London during the war years and had suffered heartache because she could not have any of her own.

Authorities here are of the opinion the local couple's offer of a home for the Toronto orphan of the storm is not likely to be accepted.

They said "interprovincial red tape" would work against it. The Ontario government would not likely let the orphaned Thorpe baby be adopted outside the province, they said.

But Mrs. Scroggs still hopes, and the baby things are waiting.

Suez Pact Signed

CAIRO (AP)—Under close security guard, British and Egyptian diplomats Tuesday night signed an historic treaty to end Britain's occupation of the Suez Canal Zone within 20 months.

A proclamation held Egyptian police and armed forces in a state of alert after alleged agents of the Communists and the fanatical Moslem Brotherhood had stoned and wrecked two buses near Cairo.

Officials said the alerting proclamation was merely precautionary. They explained the incident that prompted it occurred at a youth rally held in the Giza area near the Great Pyramid to celebrate the end of 72 years of British military activity in Egypt. A few persons were reported injured.

The treaty calls for withdrawal of the 83,000 British troops in the Canal Zone.

Young, new figures in British and Egyptian political life signed the pact. Lieut.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, 36-year-old premier whose army coup dethroned King Farouk August 26, 1952, headed the Egyptian delegation. Anthony Nutting, 34-year-old minister of state, headed the British signers.

Reform School Officials Fired in Wake of Probe

Details of B.C. Report Still Not Made Public

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP)—The seven top officials of the boys' industrial school here have been removed from office by provincial government order.

The order, read to members of the school staff Tuesday by provincial deputy minister of welfare, C. W. Lundy, follows an investigation into operation of the school by a government-appointed committee.

The school, situated in this Fraser River centre, 18 miles east of Vancouver, is the only institution in the province to which the courts may sentence juveniles requiring detention.

Welfare department officials said the seven officials removed from office would be placed in other positions outside the school administration.

NAMES LISTED

Removed from office were Herbert E. Blanchard, school director; Wallace Mayers, assistant superintendent; George Whiten, treatment director; S. Evans, chief supervisor; F. Renton, assistant supervisor; H. Penny, social work supervisor, and E. Blackburn, head school teacher.

None of the seven could be reached immediately for comment.

The order named F. G. Hassard of Vernon, B.C., regional administrator of social welfare for the Okanagan-Kamloops area, as temporary director of the school.

MUCH CRITICISM

Welfare Minister Eric Martin named R. W. Schou of Vancouver to head the committee which investigated conditions at the school following widespread criticism of conditions there.

Details of the report, completed more than a month ago, have not yet been made public.

Escapes from the school have been frequent and police and other civic officials have publicly criticized security conditions at the school and its rehabilitation program.

You Should Give More!

BY COURTNEY HADDOCK
Chairman, Community Chest Campaign

You should give more this year to the 17 Red Feather agencies of the Community Chest in Greater Victoria.

An analysis of your donation, as divided among the agencies, graphically shows why.

If you donate $5, you are giving $1.75 to the biggest of the agencies — the Family and Children's Service, which numbers foster care, guardianship and adoption of children as its major duties.

COURTNEY HADDOCK

You are giving one cent to the smallest of the 17, the Christmas Bureau, which provides the needy and their children with food, clothing and toys for the biggest day of the year.

Some other examples—you are giving less than 45 cents to the Victorian Order of Nurses to carry on its excellent work: less than 40 cents to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and two cents to the Columbia Coast Mission, which serves the isolated along the west coast of Vancouver Island.

These agencies banded together at the public's request to reduce the cost of administration and have made that cost less than 40 cents of every $5 you contribute—one of the lowest Community Chest totals in North America.

Now it is up to you to give more to those who did what you asked.

Every donation is spent in the municipality—not a cent goes outside.

Merchants who give benefit particularly, but the spending of $203,000 in Greater Victoria is a benefit to the entire community.

Captain Video Awes Senators

WASHINGTON (UP) — Captain Video, hero of outer space, came down to earth long enough yesterday to assure a Senate subcommittee that his television program would never lead a child astray.

The captain, who is an actor named Al Hodge in real life, wore a plain blue suit instead of his familiar Video Ranger uniform. But he was an impressive witness just the same.

Sen. Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N.J.) head of the subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, respectfully addressed Hodge as "captain."

The subcommittee is investigating whether crime and violence on TV programs contribute to juvenile delinquency. Captain Video said he didn't think so.

LIVE TO REFORM

On his own program, he said, the Video Rangers use "stun guns" which are not fatal but merely permit disarmament of interplanetary villians who are subsequently rehabilitated on planet "Canymede."

"You have to have villians in a hero program, or there's not any use for a hero," the captain said, explaining to the Senators what every young TV fan knows.

But the blond, bronzed actor said he avoids bloodshed and killings. He also keeps on the lookout for a "moral value" while cruising around in his space ship.

STEP LIGHTLY

Hendrickson wanted to know whether Video Rangers jump up and down on the knuckles of their opponents like some of the characters the subcommittee saw in a film exhibit earlier.

"We often step on hands," Captain Video admitted, "but only to hold a man there. There are no screams and definitely no bone-crunching."

GARY COOPER

Movie Star Heads Here

Gary Cooper, hero of the screen, will go into the Vancouver Island bush on a real life adventure—to hunt the Island's far-famed cougars.

"I've been reading about the trouble cougars are causing on the Island and we'd certainly like to get a shot at one," he told newspapermen in Vancouver yesterday.

But he would not indicate the area in which he planned to hunt.

Best bet for a big cat, according to hunters here, is the Sooke or Campbell River area.

Cooper was in B.C. two years on a deer and elk hunt.

Drug Convict at 15

City Girl Guarded From Jail Revenge

A 15-year-old former Victoria girl, youngest person ever convicted in Vancouver for possessing narcotics, is being kept under police protection because she is "frightened to death of going to Oakalla."

The girl, Joyce Markevitch, was ordered confined to the downtown Vancouver jail to await sentence rather than to Oakalla Prison Farm, where prisoners usually wait for the court's punishment, because she had "received threats."

Special prosecutor A. D. McEachern said "she told me she was frightened to death of going to Oakalla."

"The girl did not tell me the nature of the threats," Mr. McEachern said, "but it was suggested that if she gave evidence on her own behalf, implicating others, she was in danger of being physically harmed at Oakalla.

"She gave such evidence," he said.

"I took her word for it," he added.

The girl, one of the youngest ever convicted on a narcotics charge in Canada, was found guilty along with Percy Parker, 23. Both will be sentenced Wednesday.

Another man and a woman, picked up with them by RCMP drug squad detectives, were scheduled to appear in court Wednesday.

Miss Markevitch is a ward of the Catholic Children's Aid.

But Our Fair City Still Finest on Continent

Wacky Walkers, Dippy Drivers Driving Parson Potty

BY HARRY YOUNG

The city with the world's worst drivers, the stupidest pedestrians, the zaniest traffic regulations?

Victoria is the answer, according to Dr. W. G. Wilson, former First United Church minister and for 33 years a resident of the city.

Despite his scathing remarks, Dr. Wilson told members of the Chamber of Commerce tourist trade group yesterday that he lived in Victoria because "it's the finest place to live on the North American continent."

The 86-year-old speaker interspersed his condemnations with some constructive ideas.

He suggested Victoria should try to be a more friendly city.

He cited a recent case of a Chilliwack man who claimed he had been insulted by a member of the police force, for pinpointing in the wrong spot."

He instanced two English girls who, although coming from a "reserved" country, said over the radio that they found Victoria an unfriendly city.

"You got enough bad advertising recently from Shawnigan Lake without bringing things nearer home," he added.

Looking around his audience, Dr. Wilson declared: "I think some of you chaps should come to church more often."

He said that the tourist trade perhaps did not realize how good a job the churches were doing for the tourist business.

"We make ourselves friendly to visitors," he said.

"Every visitor who comes to our church is asked to sign his or her name before leaving. We send every one of them a card at Christmas . . ."

Dr. Wilson added that business could be built up by friendliness.

But when you talk about traffic to the good doctor, it's just like waving a red flag in front of a bull.

He just bursts out of himself.

"Drivers in Victoria have the worst manners I have ever encountered. They have no manners at all.

"They won't let you make a left hand turn—until a car with a foreign license plate comes along.

"The bad habits of drivers are only surpassed by the bad manners of the pedestrians.

"Pedestrians cross the streets without looking right or left as if they were suffering from sleeping sickness.

"They cross against the lights and then look at you as if you had no right to be driving on their streets."

"I met a man from Chicago who said he was getting out of Victoria as soon as he could. He was dead scared to drive on our streets."

Dr. Wilson suggested that the Chamber of Commerce should stimulate an educational campaign on road manners and safety.

The positioning of the traffic lights, some at the side of the intersections, some on both sides of the road; some on one side and others up aloft in the middle of the intersections, all came in for the doctor's censure.

"They should be standardized. Besides at night the flashing neons make traffic lights crazy."

Curb markings also came in for criticism.

"I always thought red-lined curbs meant bus stops, but I've stood at one in Victoria which never has any buses."

He suggested it was unnecessary to have yellow or "no parking" lines in front of the city churches.

"They are used only about twice every week on Sundays or for an occasional big funeral. Churches should be allowed to hang out 'no parking' notices when the churches are in use, and let cars be parked there at other times," he added.

He estimated the spaces in front of city churches will park 100 cars a day for a period of one hour each.

He summed up the tourist trade people as a group that wanted visitors to come in large numbers, with plenty of money in their pockets.

"You then want to take that money out of their pockets, let them go with only enough to make a decent departure," he said.
